
OFF HOURS

Assignment 2. Content and Social Media Strategy

What begins when work ends.

A continuation of the Assignment 1 deck

Mumbai and Bengaluru · 10-sachet night drink · melatonin-free

Assignment 2 · Content & Social Media Strategy · submission 5 October 2026

Where we stand, inherited from Assignment 1

- Retention before reach. The 10-night trial is the decision window, not an acquisition vanity metric.
- An understated, proof-led launch. The audience is an evidence-seeking wellness sceptic, not a hype audience.
- We compete with the habit of not switching off, not with pharmacies.
- Deliberately delayed: celebrity blitzes, mass display, TV and print, marketplace-ad dependence, and partnership pushes.
- Persona: Meera Nair, 32, Product Manager, Koramangala. Trials first, reads ingredients, cancels in one click.

1 • Content Marketing Objective

Make Off Hours the brand people turn to when the evening will not switch off.

- Primary. Build awareness of the moment, not of a claim.

Recognition of the 10 pm problem comes before any product belief.

- Primary. Educate consumers and own the ingredient question.

The trust gate for an ingested product is the label. Answering the question earns the right to sell.

- Secondary. Engagement, community, traffic, conversion support.

Each is a means here, never a headline goal.

- Why not more? Awareness gives recognition. Education gives permission. Everything else is downstream of those two.

2 • Brand Story and Communication

The core idea: a landing, not a pill.

- Calm. Never urgent, never a countdown. The evening is not a sale to close.
- Plain-spoken. Ingredient answers in ordinary words. No clinical jargon, no wellness poetry.
- Evidence-led. Show the label, the quantity, the reason. Facts, never feelings.
- Quietly warm. Written to one tired person, not to a market.
- Sample line: “You don't have a sleep problem. You have a landing problem.”
- Never: preachy, alarmist, medical-sounding, countdowns, streaks, competitive sneering.

3 • Content Pillars

Five pillars, each with a function.

Pillar	Function	Example	Why Meera cares
Plain Labels	Education and trust	What magnesium glycinate does, in 40 seconds	She reads labels anyway
The Landing	Awareness	10 pm, laptop closed, brain still on	The moment matches her night
Quiet Proof	Credibility	Unedited testimonials, including lukewarm ones	Evidence beats promises
After Hours	Depth and loyalty	The sleep-journal letter	She wants the long version
We Won't	Differentiation	Six claims we refuse to make	Refusals are believable

Rotation rule: every piece belongs to exactly one pillar. A piece which fits no pillar does not go out.

4 • Platform Strategy

Three surfaces, chosen on audience behaviour.

Platform	Behaviour	Role	Formats
Instagram	Scrolls Reels at 10 pm	Awareness: name the moment	Reels, carousels, Stories Q&A
YouTube	Watches to research	Education: own the ingredient answer	6 to 8 min long-form and Shorts
WhatsApp and e-mail	Consented, private, read-later	Retention: hold the 10-night window	Plain-text notes, letters

Deliberately not in the plan: TV and print • mass display • celebrity blitzes • marketplace-ad dependence • alarm and outrage formats.

5 • One Idea, Different Platforms

Night 1 of 10, the first landing.

- The idea never changes. Only the behaviour does.
- Instagram. 25-second landing film: the kitchen at night, laptop closed, no voiceover, one line at the end.
She sees the landing.
- YouTube. 6 to 8 minute explainer plus a 45-second cut: what sits in the sachet, plainly, including what it does not do.
She understands the landing.
- WhatsApp and e-mail. One plain-text note per night for ten nights. Night one asks one question.
She lives the landing.
- Every piece points to the next surface. The referral link closes the loop back to discovery.

6 • Content Concepts

Six concepts, each specified as idea, pillar, platform, format, objective.

PROOF, NOT PROMISES • OFF HOURS

WHAT WE WON'T SAY ABOUT OUR OWN PRODUCT

Six claims we refuse to make, and why.

OH 2/6

Concept 3, “Six things we refuse to say”, carousel slide 2 of 6.

Design direction: warm off-white ground, one burnt-orange accent, editorial serif headline. No badge, no arrow, no urgency device.

1 • What magnesium glycinate does

Plain Labels • Instagram carousel • education and saves

2 • We read our own label out loud

Plain Labels • YouTube long-form • education and trust

3 • Six things we refuse to say about our own product

We Won't • Instagram carousel • differentiation and shares

4 • Night 1 of 10, the landing film

The Landing • Instagram Reel • awareness

5 • The shelf, customers' own notes, unranked

Quiet Proof • Instagram and private channel • trust

6 • Ask us about the label

Plain Labels • Stories Q&A to video • engagement and education

Concept 4, the Reel key frame with timing margin.

Shot discipline: one continuous take in a dim kitchen, single lamp source, hands and objects only, no faces. Music only in the middle beat.

The landing film, storyboard beats

25 seconds, one continuous shot

0 to 5s. A laptop is closed and pushed aside. Room tone only. No music.

5 to 15s. A hand sets down one sachet and a glass of warm water. Slow, unhurried.

15 to 25s. The sachet opens, pours, stirs once. The camera holds. The only text is the last line.

On-screen text at 20 to 25s: NIGHT 1 OF 10.

Why 25 seconds: the audience is scrolling at the exact hour the film shows. The idea must land in three seconds and stay saveable for tonight.

7 • Hero Content / Campaign

The 10-Night Landing. The trial window becomes the campaign.

- Insight. The problem for Meera is not sleep. The problem is the twenty minutes between closing the laptop and reaching bed.
- Big idea. Ten nights, ten small pieces, one per night, each a landing rather than a lesson.
- Key message. “We are not asking you to sleep earlier. We are asking you to land better.”
- Arc. Name the moment, answer the question, hold the ten nights, let the proof speak.
- Why this hero: the campaign turns the brand's hardest metric, the trial-to-subscription window, into content.

8 • Community and Engagement

Followers become participants by answering a question they already answer elsewhere.

- Ask-the-coach, answered in public. No question too basic, including the awkward ingredient questions.
- The Shelf. Customers' own night notes, unranked and unedited. Inclusion, never competition.
- Quiet Testimony. Reviews in the customer's own words. Any edit visibly marked.
- The 10-Night Check-in. One private question a night. No scoreboard, no streak to lose.
- Refused: competitive challenges and duets · alarm-driven live formats · announcements broadcast through community channels.

9 • Influencer / Creator Strategy

Fit is a teaching-and-trust test, not a reach test.

	Creator A	Creator B
Who	Shabbir Ahmed, Sleep Psychologist, Navi Mumbai	Shruti Maheshwari, co-founder, Sleep Gurukul, Mumbai
Credibility	CBT-I practice. Author, The Sleep Foundations. MA Psychology. Doctoral research.	Sleep and wellbeing coach, breath-work. Practice recognised at the BW Wellbeing Festival, Mumbai.
Audience	Adults seeking behavioural answers, not chemical ones	Indian professionals, metro, breath-work and routine-led
Why fit	Purest carrier of Plain Labels: method-led, positioned against hacks and unfounded claims	Carries The Landing: teaches the ritual a product will never show. India-native practice.
Role	Flagship educator: one explainer, one label review, one Q&A	Ritual partner: guided ten-night wind-down series. Phase 2 corporate bridge.

Filters first, names second: teaching ratio · private-engagement ratio · reply tone · disclosure comfort. Open checks: category conflicts, disclosure line, Mumbai and Bengaluru audience share.

10 • Two-Week Content Calendar

Ten pieces, four deliberate quiet days.

Day	Platform	Content	Format	Pillar
1 · Mon	YouTube	We read our own label out loud (anchor)	Long-form 7 min	Plain Labels
2 · Tue	None	Quiet day	None	None
3 · Wed	Instagram	What magnesium glycinate does, in 40 seconds	Carousel (5)	Plain Labels
4 · Thu	Instagram	Night 1 of 10, the landing film	Reel 25s	The Landing
5 · Fri	Instagram	Ask us about the label, weekly answers	Stories Q&A	Plain Labels
6 · Sat	WhatsApp and e-mail	Night 5 check-in: what time did your evening end?	Plain-text note	After Hours
7 · Sun	None	Quiet day	None	None
8 · Mon	YouTube	Why this is not a sleeping pill (anchor)	Long-form 6 min	Plain Labels
9 · Tue	Instagram	Six things we refuse to say about our product	Carousel (6)	We Won't
10 · Wed	None	Quiet day	None	None
11 · Thu	Instagram	The shelf, customers' own night notes	Carousel (6)	Quiet Proof
12 · Fri	Instagram	Short cut of the Monday anchor	Short 45s	Plain Labels
13 · Sat	WhatsApp and e-mail	Night 10: one thing which changed, one which did not	Note and referral link	Quiet Proof
14 · Sun	None	Quiet day	None	None

Cadence rationale: the brand's job is a habit, not a feed. Four quiet days are a decision, not a gap. One anchor and one visual piece per week. Paid amplifies only messages already proven organically.

11 • Measurement and Success

Seven metrics, each tied to an objective, and one of them negative.

#	Objective	KPI	Healthy signal	Cadence
1	Awareness	Reach: Reels against search arrivals	Search arrivals grow faster than Reels reach	Monthly
2	Education	Saves and returns on label explainers	Explainers lead the month for saves	Monthly
3	Consideration	Completion rate on long-form	The "not a pill" film completes best	Monthly
4	Trust	Private interactions: saves, DM questions, replies	Private at least equals public	Monthly
5	Conversion support	Trial starts from discovery and search	Rising, with a healthy source mix	Monthly
6	Retention	Night-5 and night-10 check-in participation	A meaningful share reply or stay	Every 10 nights
7	Health (stop signal)	Argument threads and complaint mentions	Flat or falling	Monthly

Month one, working when saves lead, private responses match public ones, check-ins receive answers and argument threads stay flat. Not working when reach rises while saves stall.

Continuity, risks and what would change our mind

Every choice here traces back to Assignment 1, and every risk is named.

- Viable alternative on record: an education-first, newsletter-led plan. Fully compliant, and it leaves the display surface idle. The margin is narrow (0.84 against 0.82) and stated.
- Risk 1. The quiet channel is favourable but slow. Judge the channel across a full cycle, not a month.
- Risk 2. Restraint becomes inaudibility. Display content carries reach, and we track reach.
- Risk 3. Partnership announcements under-deliver in alliance channels. Those channels stay two-way.
- Risk 4. Creator conflicts and audience geography are unverified. Three checks run before contracting.
- Strategy first. Design second. Every creative decision has a reason, and the reason is always the same: this brand exists to end the day, not to win the feed.
