Brand Overview & Business Goal

What We Offer & Why It's Different

A simple, drug-free wind-down ritual in a glass — one sachet, warm water, lights-low. Urban professionals 25–40 finish work at 9–10 pm, still wired — they scroll, snack, and sleep badly. Melatonin feels medical; chamomile tea feels weak.

Melatonin-Free Formula

Ingredient-forward, built as a ritual, not a pill — magnesium + L-theanine + chamomile.

Subscription Refill Rhythm

Designed to become a repeatable evening habit, not a one-off purchase.

Taste & Texture for Work-Nights

Unsweet, light — designed for a work-night reality, not a wellness spa.

Competitive Landscape

OTC sleep gummies and melatonin tablets; herbal/sleep teas; wellness apps (guided wind-downs); the default alternative — doing nothing and scrolling.

📌 Strategic stance: We compete with the habit of not switching off, not with pharmacies.

Primary Business Goal

1,000

Paying Subscribed Households

Target within the first 12 months of launch across Mumbai + Bengaluru.

This is a business outcome — a recurring-revenue customer base — not a marketing activity. Marketing's job is the measurable path that gets the business there.

Why this goal: A D2C subscription business compounds on retention. A loyal base funds every later stage of growth. The 1,000-household base is the foundation, not the ceiling.

Marketing Objectives (SMART)

Two numbered, dated, and owned objectives — both traceable directly to the 1,000-subscriber business goal. The arithmetic closes by construction.

1

Acquire — Trial & Conversion

Ramp to a sustained run-rate of ≥600 trial-kit orders/month by month 6, converting ≥12% of triallists to subscription within 30 days of trial start — delivering ≥90 new subscribers/month at run-rate, including a ≥15% referral share.

Acquisition objective — owns the top of the funnel and the first conversion gate.

2

Retain — Revenue Quality

By month 12, at least 60% of monthly revenue comes from existing subscribers, with third-purchase repeat rate ≥ 45%.

Retention objective — owns the compounding engine that makes the 1,000-household base durable.

≥600	≥12%
Trial-kit orders/month by Month 6	Trial-to-subscription conversion within 30 days
≥90	≥15%
New subscribers/month at run-rate	Referral share of new subscribers
60%	≥45%
Monthly revenue from existing subscribers by Month 12	Third-purchase repeat rate

Target Audience

Demographics

Age: 25–40, single or young-couple households

Education & profession: Degree-educated professionals — tech, finance, consulting, media

Locations:

- Mumbai: Powai, Lower Parel, Andheri
- Bengaluru: Indiranagar, Koramangala, HSR

Income: ₹12L+ annual household income — already pays for convenience and self-care (food delivery, gym apps, streaming).

₹999 is an impulse-try. ₹1,899/mo competes with one dinner out.

Psychographics & Behaviour

Evidence-Seeking Wellness Sceptics

Read ingredient lists, dislike hype, want better mornings more than "sleep."
Identity: ambitious but burning the candle.

Digital-Native Shoppers

Shops online several times a week; subscribes and cancels ruthlessly; discovers via short video and peer group chats; researches reviews before any ingested product.

Active 10 pm–1 am

The exact window Off Hours is designed to interrupt — and serve.

Who Is Not Our Audience

- Insomniacs seeking clinical treatment
- Price-first general supplement buyers
- Anyone outside Mumbai + Bengaluru in phase 1

Primary Buyer Persona — "Meera"

Meera Nair, 32

Product Manager, Series-B startup
Bengaluru (Koramangala)
₹18–24 LPA

Her Day

Stand-ups at 10 am, deep work at night. Gym membership renewed yearly, used rarely. Orders in 4–5 nights a week. Unwinds with series + scrolls till 1 am. Alarm at 7:30.

Interests

Productivity systems, longevity content, café coffee, weekend treks.

Platforms

Instagram Reels, YouTube deep-dives, WhatsApp groups, Reddit India fitness threads, email newsletters.

"I don't have a sleep problem — I have a switching-off problem. Show me something simple that actually works and I'll stick with it."

Goals

- Wake up clear-headed without another pill
- Feel in control of her evenings again

Pain Points

- 3–4 hours of "junk time" at night
- Groggy mornings
- Sceptical of gummies after one bad experience
- Hates auto-renew traps

Motivations

- Visible morning energy
- A ritual that feels like hers
- Evidence over promises

Buying Behaviour

Trials first; checks ingredients + reviews; pays UPI; will subscribe after one good full box; cancels in one click if annoyed.

Digital Marketing Strategy

We target over-wired professionals 25–40 in Mumbai and Bengaluru who do not believe they have a sleep problem — and we meet them at the moment they feel it. We want them to think "this is a simple ritual, made for my actual nights," and to do one thing: try the 10-night kit.

📌 Broad approach — rest-and-consolidation first: Everything we do digitally exists to convert a trial into a calm, repeatable evening habit and then into a subscription — not to chase reach.

The Channels Work as One Loop, Not a Stack

- ➔ Earn First Attention
Short-video and search content earn honest attention and answer the ingredient questions that build trust.
- ➔ Convert at Low Friction
The storefront converts with a low-friction ₹999 trial — no commitment, no risk.
- ➔ Own the Relationship
Pack insert, WhatsApp refill concierge, and the fortnightly sleep-journal letter carry the relationship through the 10-day judgement window and into subscription.
- ➔ Paid Amplifies, Never Leads
Paid spend exists mainly to re-find people already in the loop — it follows proven messages, never precedes them.

Phase Sequencing

PESO Media Mix

Four media types working as one system — Earned and Shared create believable first contact; Owned converts and keeps; Paid only accelerates what the other three already prove. Spend follows pull, never precedes it.

Paid

What it is for Off Hours: Retargeting to site visitors & video viewers; later, sponsored discovery inside quick-commerce listings once demand exists.

Primary job: Re-find warm audiences; amplifies proven messages only.

Earned

What it is for Off Hours: Wellness editors & newsletters covering the "switch-off" culture; the brand's founding narrative — built melatonin-free for India's late-working cities.

Primary job: Third-party credibility the ingredient-sceptic trusts.

Shared

What it is for Off Hours: Customers posting their night-routine rituals; 10-night challenge check-ins; referral links in group chats.

Primary job: Turns the ritual into social proof; peer recommendation.

Owned

What it is for Off Hours: Storefront & product pages, WhatsApp refill concierge (opt-in), sleep-journal email letter, pack inserts.

Primary job: The retention spine — where trials become subscribers.

Recommended Digital Channels — 5 Priorities

Channel	Role	Why This Channel?
Instagram Reels + Short Video	Discovery	Where our audience actually unwinds at 10 pm; ritual content formats natively.
Search (brand site + category articles)	Trust & research capture	Ingredient questions are the trust gate; the brand must answer them itself.
Own storefront + UPI checkout	Conversion	Low-friction ₹999 trial; owns the data the subscription model needs.
WhatsApp concierge (opt-in)	Retention & service	User-consented, India-native, high-open — perfect for refill timing and questions.
E-mail sleep-journal letter	Experience & advocacy	The 10-day judgement window needs a guide; letters out-sell loud campaigns.

Named Non-Priorities — and Why

Television & Print

Wrong age and wrong moment — unmeasurable against our conversion objectives.

Celebrity Influencer Blitzes

Borrowed attention, wrong trust mechanic for an ingested product.

Mass Display / Broad Awareness Bursts

Spend ahead of demand — awareness money lands before trial intent exists.

Heavy Marketplace-Ads Dependence

A listing helps logistics, but we refuse to rent the brand's first impression.

Integrated Digital Journey — One Connected Loop

Every channel hands the customer to the next with context attached — nothing is a dead end, and owned channels carry the relationship through the 10-day judgement window.

The Judgement Window

Days 1–10 are the make-or-break period. The sleep-journal letter and WhatsApp concierge run in parallel during this window — one guides the experience, the other answers questions in real time. Both feed into the subscription decision.

The Referral Loop

Subscribers who share referral links in group chats re-enter the loop at Discovery — creating a peer-recommendation flywheel that reduces paid acquisition cost over time. The $\geq 15\%$ referral share target is built into the acquisition objective.

Key Strategic Decisions & Brand Selection Test

Four Decisions That Define the Strategy

1 Retention Before Reach

The entire system is sequenced to win subscribers, not impressions.
Trial → judged experience → subscription is the value engine.

2 An Understated, Proof-Led Launch

Quiet, sharp, ritual content over launch-week hype. The brand earns its loud phase rather than starting with it.

3 We Compete With the Habit of Not Switching Off

Positioning against an evening behaviour — not against pharmacies or gummies — keeps the brand distinct and the message human.

4 Partnerships and Mass Awareness Are Deliberately Delayed

Alliances in phase two; awareness spend only after pull signals exist.
Money and attention are spent in the order they convert.

Brand Selection Test

What do you sell?

A melatonin-free night-drink sachet — a 10-night trial kit and a refill subscription.

Who is it for?

Urban professionals
25–40 in Mumbai & Bengaluru who can't switch off after late workdays.

What problem does it solve?

Evenings that never downshift: wired minds, junk-time scrolls, groggy mornings.

Why would someone choose you?

A simple, non-medical ritual with honest ingredients, fair trial pricing, and support through the full first 10 nights — chosen once, kept as a habit.
